

Regarding the required CE marking based on the new law effective on 01.07.2013, we would like to inform as follows.

For the products manufactured in our company, like polyethylene foam, physically cross linked, polyethylene, or materials laminated with polyethylene or physically cross linked polyethylene, has been a conformity assessment done, with the result that these products are not falling under a harmonised norm. Therefore our products will not be labeled with CE mark in the future.

This also removes the provision of a service declaration under BauPVO.

The quality of our products and the compliance of their structural-physical properties will furthermore be verified by our certificate according to DIN EN ISO 9001:2008.
